

Mapping support for newly qualified practitioners in Kent, Surrey and Sussex

★
University of Brighton

The purpose of the knowledge café is to:

Gain a mutual understanding of the range of support provided for newly qualified practitioners (through a conversation with a very explicit purpose) to:

- gain a deeper understanding of the different perspectives held by people with regard to the support of NQP
- help gain a deeper understanding of one's personal views and thought processes (through comparison and from hearing the views of others)
- flush out issues which need to be aired
- help build a consensus around the support for NQP

Further The purpose is to:

- knowledge share
- build networks
- gain new perspectives and new ideas (for the research team but also each delegate)

There is an outcome – that is ideas that are then taken back to the plenary and combined to inform the way forward (for the research team and delegates opportunity to reflect on what they have learnt through the discussion and think about what they can take back to their individual trusts).

NOTE

We may not be making new knowledge (for the conference members) but deepening the understanding that we already have.
